Purpose

What is the purpose of sending a child to Nursery School?

We would like to suggest that the important goals are to provide the kind of environment and varied experiences that will help a child develop:

- A positive relationship with other children
- Participation in a group setting
- An interest and joy in learning
- Security and feelings of success
- Self control
- Creativity and self-expression
- Responsibility for their own actions and environment
- A successful transition from home to school

Importance of Play

We would like to point out the importance of play for children. Play is said to be the “business” of children. Play is not merely “fill-in” time but an integral part of a child’s learning process. Through play children put their creative ideas into action. They learn how to communicate effectively and through sharing discover how to get along with other children. Play helps to foster the ability to focus attention and concentrate. It can provide opportunities for children to work out their feelings.

Playtime can be as much a learning experience as the time of more formal teaching.

What is a child expected to gain from this experience?

3 year olds:

The program for three year olds emphasizes social skills- learning to play with others, eye-hand coordination, large muscle activity and language activities-through stories, finger plays and song. Fine motor skills such as cutting, painting and other art activities will be part of our program.

4 year olds:

In addition to the above, four year olds will be offered work in fine muscle skills, printing letters, understanding number concepts, alphabet recognition and sounds. There will be plenty of opportunity for hands on experiences like cooking, painting, and taking field trips. This is a time of learning through all the senses of actually touching, seeing, hearing, smelling and tasting. This is a time of absorbed watching, questioning and exploring. The preschool child is alive with curiosity. How, why, what and where are constantly in his or her vocabulary.

As a Christian Nursery School we feel it is our responsibility to provide preschool experience with a Biblical foundation.

It is our goal to help the children learn about faith and to experience Jesus as a helper and friend through Bible stories, nature and experiences where God is mentioned. Naturally the children learn about God.

In Summary, it is our hope that children who attend ABC Nursery School will find it a fun, learning and growing experience.
